Honor Frankfort Couple On Golden Wedding Day

Relatives, neighbors and friends gathered at the Matteson Church basement last Thursday, September 11 to honor Mr. and Mrs. Louis Marquardt of Frankfort on their fiftieth wedding anniversary. A fine program was presented and much enjoyed by all, after which a delicious lunch was served. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the honored couple many more happy anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Marquardt were married September 11, 1891 in the Richmond church of which they are members still. They farmed in Rich township until eleven years ago when they made their home in Frankfort.

Mr. Marquardt is 72 years old and Mrs. Marquardt, who before her marriage was Alwina Seemann of Monee township is 68 years old, both in good health. They have eight children, twenty-two grand children and one great grand child.

The children are: Geo., Tinley Park, Louis Jr., and Elmer, Matteson Mrs. Lorenz Bode, Mrs. Wm. Kampe, Mrs. Louis Matthews, Matteson, Mrs. Henry Kampe, Tinley Park, and Mrs. Arthur Schoeling of Chicago Heights.

FRANKFORT, MOKENA UNIT HOME BUREAU HOLDS MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Frankfort Mokena Unit of the Home Bureau was held at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Kohl.

Plans for the new year beginning in October included a class in sewing construction and one in rug making for special groups interested. All were enthusiastic in the hospital insurance plan offered to Home Bureau families at very reasonable rates.

Mrs. Huffman the Home Adviser demonstrated a delicious peach crunch, a salad and several new ways of serving fruits.

She also gave some most timely advice on buying household furniture, supplies and food staples at the present time.

"Planning the Winter Food Supply" was the topic of the lesson.

The annual meeting will be held in Plainfield on Sept. 30. Anyone interested is cordially invited to visit or join these meetings.

Lunch was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Erwin Marti on October 21.

PALOS WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS FLOWER SHOW

The Palos Park Woman's Club first Flower Show held in the new Community Hall on the 13th, and which was under the supervision of Mrs. Geo. Ward, was definitely outstanding in floral technique, floor arrangement and a general knowledge of correctness in every detail.

The exhibit was highly cultural. First and foremost was the display of roses from the Chas. Mathews' Gardens when the doors were thrown open for the public to enjoy the aristocrat of the garden on parade. Nona Mathews fruit display, a work of Art too, won many ribbons, as did the L. M. Busseys for fruits, vegetables, and flowers won the Sweepstakes.

Mrs. Blenda Hunter, a purple award for miniatures, Ada Schmidt's unique woodland display of thistles, burrs, wild blackberry vines and mushrooms on a green platter, Mrs. Ward's collection of herbs, The Mahaffey's garden glories all too numerous to mention.

Supper was served cafeteria style followed by professional dancing. Mrs. Wallace Combs of Tinley Park headed the list of judges.

MRS. WALTER GRAY DIES IN JOLIET HOSPITAL

Mrs. Walter Gray passed away Thursday in St. Joseph's Hospital in Joliet following a short illness.

Mrs. Gray was the former Miss Susan Homerding, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Homerding, and was born and raised in Homer. At the time of her death she was 47, and had been residing at 756 Ruby St., Joliet the past six years.

Surviving are her husband, Walter two sisters, Mrs. Andrew Ludwig of Orland Park, Mrs. Theresa Hemphill of Lockport and a brother Walter Homerding of Lockport.

Funeral services were held Saturday morning from the Sonntag Funeral Home to St. Raymond's Catholic Church.

Frankfort Lions Planning Halloween Party

The Frankfort Lions Club has been quite active in the civic life of the community the past summer. They installed play ground equipment in the Frankfort public school yard and are now making plans to install gas in the school kitchen.

The Lions are also planning to sponsor a Halloween Party next month. They are planning for other activities during the fall and winter months.

Noted Speaker To Address Tinley Woman's Club

Now that our little ones have returned to school and our big boys have given up fishing and turned to business it is high time that we Women concern ourselves with more serious things.

The Tinley Park Woman's Club will observe "President's Day" at 2 o'clock September 24 at the regular meeting place in the Methodist Church. We are privileged to have as our honored guest on that Day, Mrs. W. M. Rennie the 3rd District President. Our special guests are to be the Presidents of neighboring Woman's Clubs.

Mary Meyer Bacon will be the guest speaker. Her subject will be "Thoughts Pertinent and Impertinent". Here are a few comments regarding her talk:

Mrs. Bacon so delighted, interested and amused her audience at the North End Women's Club that they called her back for as much additional time as she could give them. The most human, close to the heart talk of the year and without exception the outstanding personality. Hamilton Park Women's Club. "We loved your talk, so different from the things we usually hear. So much sparkle on top and depth all the way through." Woman's Dept. Club of Wheaton.

A reception and tea will follow the program. The regular business meeting will begin promptly at 1:30 p.m. Have you marked the day, in your date book. Not yet—Well do so at once lest you forget.

C. M. Cleveland To Discuss Tenure Bill at Joliet Meeting

The meeting of September 20 which is being called to decide whether to establish a County School Survey Committee is open to the public. This will be held at the Joliet Township High School Auditorium beginning at 9 a.m. DST. School teachers and superintendents may be especially interested in the discussion of the new teacher tenure law.

Mr. C. L. Jordan, Superintendent of Joliet Township high school, will discuss the new tenure law as it applies to Board of Education districts. Mr. Clarence Cleveland, director of Dist. 158, Frankfort township will discuss the tenure bill as it applies to Board of Director Districts.

It should be noted that if the school board members vote in favor of the establishment of a Survey Committee, this committee will have only advisory powers and could make recommendations to local school boards following comprehensive surveys of the county school districts. The committee, if formed, could gather data showing whether school facilities are properly spread throughout the county, whether children are getting proper instruction, and whether the taxpayers' money is being spent most judiciously.

Mokena Royal Blue Store Preparing To Move Into Newly Acquired Quarters

Irwin Howes who has been operating the Royal Blue Store in Mokena for the past three years in the Krapp Building, recently purchased the old Tom Homerding property across the street from his present store and is having the building remodeled and an addition added to it preparatory to moving into his new location.

Geo. W. Marti is in charge of the mason work now under construction.

MIDGET AUTO RACE CALLED OFF DUE TO RAIN

Hundreds of auto racing fans journeyed to raceway park at Blue Island Saturday night to see Tony Bettenhausen, Tinley Auto racing ace, and to witness presentation of a gift by Tinley Park village officials to Tony, but a sudden rain made it necessary to call the affair off much to the keen disappointment of the very large crowd present.

Special thanks are extended to all who helped toward the gift.

Mokena Wall Paper Mill To Add 2nd Printing Press

The Mokena Wall Paper Mill has been turning out a large quantity of wall paper the past few weeks and orders have been coming in good. The company is planning to install another wall paper printing press in the very near future. The foundation for the new machine has been completed.

Mokena Plumbers Receive Many Rush Order Jobs

Heiman-Lapena of Mokena engaged in the plumbing business are being rushed with jobs and often wish there were more hours in the day. They are very busy right now installing furnaces, radiators, water pipes, etc. They have been engaged on jobs in Midlothian, Tinley Park and Mokena and New Lenox.

Lead Poison From Paint Cans Kills Cows

Lead poison from paint cans dumped into a ditch caused the death of valuable cows on the Wm. Hentsch farm northeast of Mokena. The poison was carried in the water of a brook flowing thru the farm.

The Mokena Civic Association cleared approximately $630 in their recent Homecoming. A total of over $1700 was realized. In order to provide against any possible cut in revenue next year in event of rainy weather the Association voted to set aside $500 in a special fund with the provision that of this amount $200 can be checked out in event of an emergency. The proceeds and the profit realized is the best the Association has experienced during the four years they have been sponsoring the Homecomings. The Association has been receiving many compliments on the very fine entertainment program they provided as well as on the many fine exhibits shown. All in all the homecoming was a whale of a success and the Association thanks the public for their fine support which made the affair the success it was.

The Association has appointed a committee to look after the skating rink in the school yard for the coming winter season so as to provide skating for all those who enjoy this sport.

The Association has authorized the purchase of a bicycle rack for the Mokena public school so as to provide a safe place for the student's bicycles.

An idea was presented at the meeting of the Association that a community building ought to be included as the object for the Association to work toward. A community house would be an ideal project and one which would be of great benefit to the entire community.

Mokena Village Board Rejects Street Improvement Bid At Special Meeting

The Mokena village board at a special meeting held Wednesday night rejected the lone bid received for making improvements on certain village streets from state motor fuel gas tax funds due the village. It was the opinion of the board that it was too late in the season to undertake any road work in which road oil has to be used. The street improvements which had been contemplated will be held over until next year.

Politicians Opportunists Minister Tells Frankfort Lions Club Members

Rev. Mr. Showalter of Chicago Heights gave a decidedly interesting and illuminating talk before the Frankfort Lions Club Tuesday evening in the course of which he stated that it would be better for mankind if the war leaders creating the present senseless European conflict were hanged. He further pointed out that most of the politicians are opportunists, always looking forward to what they can get for themselves with no regard to the welfare of their constituents. Rev. Mr. Showalter also pointed out that America is facing a real peril in the disintegration of the average home. He gave graphic illustrations of parents not knowing what their children are doing and of children not knowing where their parents are going.

Friends of Rural Public Health To Meet At Tinley

The Friends of Rural Public Health will hold their quarterly meeting in the Tinley Park School Friday, September 26 at 2 p.m. The topic selected for the meeting is "Health Service in a Community".

As the formation of Community health councils was strongly advised by Mrs. Harriet Fullmer, Director of Rural Public Health Service at a recent meeting at the Public Health Unit Headquarters in Chicago, all those interested in this project should arrange to attend. Those from Orland who wish to go and lack transportation should contact Mrs.

Former Tinley Police Chief Married 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmediknecht well known residents of Tinley Park have been privileged to go life's pathway together for half a century and on September 27th they will observe the golden event by entertaining their relatives, neighbors and friends at an open house in the Saenger Hall in Tinley Park beginning at 7:30 o'clock in the evening and continuing without any time limit.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmediknecht were married in Chicago on Sept. 24, 1891 and immediately afterward came to Tinley Park and have lived here ever since.

For the past 45 years Mr. Schmediknecht has been in the employ of the village as lamp lighter, police chief and water pumper.

In the days before electricity had been brought to Tinley the streets were lighted with kerosene lamps set on posts and Mr. Schmediknecht used to make his rounds every evening carrying a small ladder which was placed against the lamp post so the lamp could be reached. A cross iron pin thru the post acted as a support against which the ladder was placed. Mr. Schmediknecht has two of these old time street lights in his yard now.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmediknecht have two sons, Edward of Blue Island and Fred of Wilmington, Illinois; two daughters, Josephine at home and Elsie of Goodland, Indiana.

Mokena Youth Showing Brown Swiss In Many States

Kenneth Warning of Mokena is doing quite a bit of traveling these days. Following the Will County 4H show last month at the Geuther Grove near Frankfort, he was chosen by Judge Bridges of Connecticut, breeder of show Brown Swiss Cattle to be his showman. Kenneth received the prize at the above mentioned fair for being the best showman, which by the way, we understand has a technique all its own. Judge Bridges shows his cattle at all the county and state fairs in the country. Kenneth was with him in Detroit and is now in Canada. From there he goes to a state fair in Massachusetts then to the International Dairy State Fair at Waterloo, Iowa. He later expects to go to the Pacific Coast with Bridge's Cattle.

While in Mokena with his mother, Mrs. Ethel Warning, he worked at the Irvin Marti Dairy farm north of Mokena.

F. D. Roosevelt Accepts 1936 Election Returns As Mandate to Continue Supreme Court Battle

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form a series of articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine.

THE FIGHT GOES ON "The Constitution Prevails"—Part II By Franklin D. Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1941, by Franklin D. Roosevelt and by the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. Reproduction in whole or in part is forbidden.)

This is the second half of the President's own story of the fight for Supreme court reform. It is part of the newly written introduction series to a forthcoming volume of his State Papers.

IN NOVEMBER, 1936, came the presidential and congressional elections. It was a hard-fought campaign, in which the issue was joined without reserve, in which no punches were pulled. The issue was a single one—the New Deal, its objectives, its methods, its future proposals. The opposition pointed to the court as the only obstacle which had stood in our way. On the other hand, I made it clear that, if elected, I intended to continue to press harder and harder for our objectives, in order to carry out the will of the people. The spirit of the Democratic campaign was expressed in my speech at Madison Square Garden in New York City, on October 31, 1936: that for all our objectives—many of which had already been blocked by the Supreme tuminous coal act, the National Industrial Recovery act, the New York minimum wage act, and decide just what we could do in the future for the exploited laboring man and woman; or what we could do in the way of flood control and drought control; or what we could do in all the other fields where we had promised progress—help for the blind and crippled, unemployment insurance and old age pensions, total abolition of child labor, protection against monopolies, building decent housing for the lowest income groups, slum eradication, cheaper electricity, intelligent handling of industrial disputes through collective bargaining, minimum wages—maximum hours.

The challenge of a third of a nation ill-clad, ill-housed, ill-nourished, was still with us; and we seemed to be without the necessary weapons to meet the challenge.

Court Blocks Progress.
The reactionary members of the court had apparently determined to remain on the bench as long as life continued—for the sole purpose of blocking any program of reform. This was nothing new in our national life. The same thing had happened in earlier days of our history; it had happened during President Wilson's administration. It was happening again. These men seemed to have a definite mission in life—to block our social and economic progress; and, dedicated to that a new judge would be appointed. The old judge could retire on full salary for life, if he wished. If he preferred not to retire, he might continue to remain on the bench; but he would be counterbalanced there by the new man who had had an active contact with life about him.

Time and again during the fight, I made it clear that my chief concern was with the objective—namely, a modernized judiciary that would look at modern problems through modern glasses. The exact kind of legislative method to accomplish the objective was not important. I was willing to accept any method proposed which would accomplish that ultimate objective—constitutionally and quickly. I received, however, no reasonable guarantee or assurance that some other definite method would obtain congressional approval. Rumors of compromise were plenty; but never a definite agreement or offer. Furthermore, it was clear that the opponents of the plan suggested by me would never be able to agree among themselves on a plan of their own. And the best legislative advice which I could get from the congressional leaders was that my own suggestion would ultimately be approved.

No Compromise Offered.
That is the reason why no so-called compromise was ever submitted by me to the congress; that is why it was necessary to persist in the plan originally proposed. Had any satisfactory compromise been definitely offered which would have been ef-

U. S. May Build Base in Iceland . . . Transshipments Found Impractical . . . Army Experts Had Figured Germany Would Beat Russia in Four Weeks . . . and Lindbergh Had Said Russian Air Force No Good.
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Even American isolationists get a chuckle out of the German and Japanese protests at the "immortality" of the British and Russian invasion of what used to be called Persia, and especially the sensibilities in Berlin and Tokyo being shocked by this "unwarranted" attack on a weak and defenseless power. It is obvious, of course, that the infiltration of German "tourists" and "business men" had a fifth column significance.

But a story from Iceland is just as amusing, even if it is more than a year old.

It seems that when a British fleet steamed into the harbor of the chief port of Iceland a Nazi watcher on the docks rushed up to the German consulate to report it. The consul was not interested.

"It is not a British fleet," he said, "it is a German fleet. Don't bother about it."

Then he hesitated, and surprise showed in his face. "But they are 10 days ahead of schedule," he said. Then he went about his business.

Contrary to the belief of many people in this country, Iceland is not being used importantly as a transshipment point for American supplies for Britain. It had been assumed here, after the sending of an American force to Iceland, that this would be done. The thought was that American ships, prohibited by the neutrality act from entering the war zone, could take supplies to Iceland, and then British ships could transport them the remaining 800 miles to Scotland.

Maybe this was the plan, but there were a lot of miscalculations about the facilities in Iceland.

The transshipment plan has been found impractical for the simple reason that there are no piers equipped with loading and unloading machinery of the modern type in any Icelandic harbor. To make transshipment of any ordinary freight possible it would be necessary to ship the equipment there and set it up—rather a large-sized undertaking.

THE EXPERTS GO WRONG ON SOVIET RUSSIA

In view of the possibility of a shooting war with Japan it might be wise to bear in mind that surprises may be expected, perhaps very unpleasant surprises. Nobody here believes there will be any surprise about the final outcome, but there may be developments of far-reaching importance which no one now envisions.

This skepticism applies to supposedly well-informed intelligence services of the army and navy as well as the man in the street, who knows only what he reads and can figure by looking at maps.

For instance: Within a few days after the attack on Russia by Germany a man in close touch with our army intelligence, a man whose business requires him to have contact there daily, was having dinner with some friends. He made a bet that night that the war between Germany and Russia would be over by September 1. After the bet was irrevocable, he smilingly informed the person he thought he had taken advantage of that he was betting on the best information in the world—the opinion of military experts in the army intelligence!

It would seem to the casual observer that the army should have been better informed both as to the strength of the Soviet and the morale of its people and troops. It was a great military mistake. Wars have been lost because of less grave errors than that.

Soon after Munich the editor of Aviation magazine, following a visit to Germany, wrote a story for the Saturday Evening Post, entitled: "Hitler Wasn't Bluffing." This backed up the much-maligned information given by Charles A. Lindbergh to the effect that the German air force was terrific. Lindbergh had added that the Russian air force was not very good.

This Lindbergh report was well in advance of the opening of the present war, in September, 1939. So, having laughed at Lindbergh in 1939, and seen his information confirmed in 1940, it would seem that the "experts" then accepted everything he had said in 1939 as still being true in 1941. In short there apparently was no information in the places in Washington where it should have been in June, 1941, that the Russian air force was strong enough to make some trouble for the Germans.

Other information about Russia seems to have been as cockeyed as the army's estimate that it could not fight more than four weeks. It may be that the government is about to make the same mistake in estimating the future.

The nine Supreme Court Judges shown here constitute the present sitting members of the high U. S. tribunal, four and one-half years after the date Mr. Roosevelt first presented his plan for Supreme Court reform. During the intervening years, death and retirements took a hand in the bitter controversy, removing seven of the nine members, thus further aiding the President's hand, who replaced them with jurists more heavily clothed in liberalism, and with sympathies more in line with the progressive ideology doctrines of the New Deal.

court—we had "only just begun to fight."

The election returns of 1936 left little room for doubt as to whether the people of the United States wanted that fight to continue. Forty-six states out of the 48 voted for the New Deal. The popular vote for the New Deal was 27,500,000 votes—or a plurality of over 10,000,000 votes out of the 45,000,000 cast.

As I returned to Washington after election day, I knew that the great interests and the great newspapers which had opposed my re-election in 1936 by violently attacking the policies and objectives of the last four years, were all ready and set again to transfer the scene of battle from the legislative halls to the court room. Defeat at the polls would never deter them from seeking ultimate victory from the courts.

Dictatorships Growing.
In fact, many of the later New Deal measures were already even then working their way up to the Supreme court: the social security act, the national labor relations act, the public utility holding company act. The problem was a simple one to state; but an almost impossible one to solve.

To stand still was to invite disaster. Across the seas, democracies had even then been yielding place to dictatorships, because they had proven too weak or too slow to fulfill the wants of their citizens. Social forces in our day gather headway with ever-increasing speed. It would have been dangerous to block too long the just and irresistible pressure of human needs.

Yet it was hard to read the opinion of the court on the Agricultural Adjustment act and say what we were going to be able to do for the farmer. Or the opinions outlawing the railroad retirement act, the bi-mission, they clung to their places. Although it had become, on the average, the most aged court in our history, although six justices had passed the age of 70, not a single vacancy had occurred during my first term in office. The bench had been created almost entirely by appointments by conservative Presidents; and it was now continually passing economic and political judgments, almost month by month, on a liberal program of recovery and reform.

Time would not allow us to wait for vacancies. Things were happening, NOW!

That same element of time was also most important in considering the question of passing a constitutional amendment to meet the court crisis. I considered that remedy very carefully—and rejected it. The program of the New Deal involved the most controversial social questions in the last 75 years of our history. Tremendous interests were at stake—interests which would hesitate at nothing to gain their ends. It would only be necessary to prevent ratification in 13 states in order to block any proposed amendment to the Constitution. I knew how long it would take to get the approval of 36 states. I had seen the long year-after-year ordeal of the proposed child labor amendment, which involved opposition which was only picayune in comparison with the entrenched antagonism to the new social program. No! It would take years and years to get a constitutional amendment which would meet our difficulties. Time was too pressing for that.

Retire Members at 70.
The plan which I finally proposed provided for a continuous and recurrent addition of new blood, new vigor, new experience, and new outlook. For, under my plan, as soon as a judge reached the age of 70, fective in attaining the objective, and which would have been capable of quick passage, it would have been accepted by me.

Events happened in the midst of the fight to cloud the chief issue. There was first, the retirement of Justice Van Devanter in June, 1937. Some have said that it was strategically timed; but of course that is incapable of proof at the present time. There came, then, the death of Senator Robinson, the senate Democratic leader of the members in favor of the plan.

Supreme Court Yields.

But the startling fact which did more than anything else to bring about the defeat of the plan in the halls of the congress, was a clear-cut victory on the bench of the court for the objectives of the fight. The court yielded. The court changed. The court began to interpret the Constitution instead of torturing it. It was still the same court, with the same justices. No new appointments had been made. And yet, beginning shortly after the message of February 5, 1937, what a change!

Whether this change came as a result of the election returns of 1936, whether it came as a result of my message, whether it came as a result of public discussion during the course of the fight, or a combination of all these—those are important questions for the later historians of the period. These need not be discussed here.

On March 29, 1937, the court completely reversed itself on the constitutional power of a state to pass a minimum wage law for women. Just nine months after denying this power to the states, the court unequivocally decided, five to four, to uphold the power; and, in so many words, it expressly overruled its earlier contrary decisions and thus a new interpretation was placed on the doctrine of freedom of contract.

It was not until after the end of the judicial term in June, 1937, that a single vacancy on the court actually occurred. The about-face in the decisions of the court had come from the very same personnel that had been on the court since my first inauguration. The victory, therefore, cannot be attributed to the new justices. It was rather a realization by one or two members of the court that the court had exceeded its powers, that it had strayed away from the Constitution itself, and that the liberal minority of the court had been correct in its conclusions.

United States Children Voice Tastes and Opinions in Poll

CHICAGO.—The second nationwide poll of children, 8 to 13 years of age, conducted by William T. Reed, candy manufacturer here, reveals some interesting, amusing and startling answers. The questionnaire was mailed to youngsters in all sections of the country, whose parents' incomes represented all income brackets, to determine the tastes and opinions of the average 1941 child.

One boy offered anything in the world to defeat Hitler, except, "My mom, dad and dog." Isolationists among the children were outnumbered 11 to 1. Nearest and dearest question, to the children no doubt, was the one relating to their favorite candy flavor. Chocolate led with 22 per cent, butterscotch second with 16 per cent, followed by caramel, cherry, peppermint, orange, and vanilla.

Vanished Men

INSTALLMENT NINE

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors.

"She was so natural!" Finlay groaned, inwardly, "so terrible real! And her story seemed so straight. But that was just the bait to catch the mouse! Poor Red and Blaise! What have I done to them?"

With a shiver he brushed her from his thoughts. Shame and chagrin vanished. With his .45 covering the direction of the last sound it was another man who lay there, a cold fighting man who waited like a cornered wolverine for a movement in the scrub.

Evidently, from the fact that they had not shot him on the beach, their intention was to take him alive.

Brush snapped behind him. His eyes flashed back but saw nothing. They had him surrounded but could not reach him without drawing his fire so were playing safe. For minutes he lay rigid, listening.

Presently his roving eyes caught the green plumes of a young spruce shivering as if touched by wind. But there was no wind. The spruce top moved into the notched rear sight of the .45. Again the spruce quivered and Finlay glimpsed a pair of glittering eyes in a swart face. Like glass splintered by a hammer, the "b-rang!" of the .45 crashed on the silence of the bush.

There was no face behind the spruce. "One gone!" Finlay muttered, inching swiftly around to cover his rear.

He was just in time. From behind the boll of a Jack-pine, eyes roved the undergrowth seeking his position. Finlay lined his sights. Then the full face and a shoulder edged into view.

"Flambeau!" Again the forest rocked with the thunder of the .45. There was a scream followed by a stillness so intense it hurt the ear-drums. Then the liquid notes of a chickadee broke the spell.

"Two gone!" But the jaws of the trap were closing on the hunted man. His firing had marked his position. He must move. Quick! Flat on his chest he hunched to the sanctuary of another spruce.

From three sides came the snapping of twigs as the hunters closed in on the hidden quarry. The eyes of the trapped man blazed with the fighting flame of a beast at bay. His nerves were ice as he knelt, watching in three directions for the rush that was coming.

Suddenly there were yells and a thrashing in the brush. But the concealed man would not be stampeded into showing himself. Then a ring of men simultaneously rushed a few yards, to fade, flattened to the earth. But one never moved again. A slug from the .45 had drilled his forehead.

"Three gone!" "They're close in, now!" muttered Finlay. "The next one will reach me!"

Then five men flung themselves at him. He found the white head of Tete-Blanche and the .45 flamed. Again it roared. They reached him and he fired point-blank into a grinning face. The face burst into a bloody mask. With his heavy gun he bludgeoned a black head that dove at him. Free, he stumbled back and swung at another. As he did there was a blinding flash of light in his eyes. He sagged to his knees, then to the earth.

CHAPTER X

At intervals, in Finlay's brain flickered a dim consciousness of his surroundings. Through blurred thoughts filtered the sound of voices, only to die away. For, time and again, the dull pounding in his head drove him back into the abyss. But gradually he groped his way through the mental twilight and was aware of his splitting head and of an indefinable torture. Sharp pains sliced through his upper arms and legs. He tried to move but his hands and feet were numb. Something held him like a vise.

With difficulty Finlay peered through the cracks between his puffed eyelids. He was on the lip of a bog, lashed to a trimmed spruce sapling. For a time he stared stupidly at the four men with rifles watching him. Then, into his dazed brain shot the memory of the fight on the shore. So they had clubbed him from behind? It seemed long ago—very long ago.

They had him lashed hand and foot with rawhide thongs, the victim of clouds of black flies that hovered around him like smoke. What would they do? Shoot him or leave him to be stung to death by the flies and mosquitoes? Men had died that way in swamps. He heard again the crash of his .45, and his tortured lips twisted in a smile. It had been a fight while it lasted. He'd got three—perhaps four. They'd remember that! But the man he wanted, whom he'd promised Bob he'd get, stood there with a leer on his hideous face under its thatch of yellowish-white hair. He'd missed Tete-Blanche. Besides him were Batoche and two others, one a bow-legged dwarf with the darting eyes of a mink—Tetu.

Finlay receives an anonymous letter suggesting that the six men were not drowned as reported. Suspicion prevails that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out of the country at any cost. The three

"How you like fly, surveyor?" taunted Tete-Blanche. "Mosquit" he start to make hees music, soon, and you swell up like poison dog."

There was laughter from the three breeds.

Finlay's face, neck and arms were stippled with blood. On his head was a lump left by the clubbed gun. His eyes were almost closed.

"You win!" Finlay groaned. "You win, now, but tell Isadore that a police plane is due here from Ottawa in September. Mounted Police! Ever hear of them? You win, now, but you'll hang before the snow flies! Think that over!"

The four breeds exchanged startled looks. Then Tete-Blanche stood over the man lashed to the spruce. The feral eyes in his grotesque face with its broken nose glittered. Finlay had seen such eyes in a trapped wolf. "T'ree good men you shoot!" he snarled. "Now you pay for dem!"

A wave of exultation beat through the man who was about to die. He had made them pay. Death held little terror. He had looked it full in the eyes before. But in the slow hours of unspeakable torture that awaited him he faced an end of which he had never dreamed. An icy sweat burst from his body. But what lay in his heart these men should never see. He squinted through the slits which were now his eyes at the venomous face of Tete-Blanche and said:

"I wanted you, handsome, for myself! Now the rope'll get you. It's too bad to soil an honest rope!"

Tete-Blanche thrust his leering face close to Finlay's. The pupils of his eyes dilated like those of a snake. "You get de kiss from fly and mosquit, now, not de woman!" he jeered. "Bonsoir, M'sieu! Feenlee!" He made a mocking bow. "We see you in de mornin'! You swell up good by den! Look like beeg fat man! Bo-jo', M'sieu! Feenlee! I wish you sleep good!"

The breed waved his hand across Finlay's face. On the little finger was a ring of hammered gold.

"Bob's ring!" A storm of hate beat through the man trussed to the tree. He strained desperately against the thongs that held him but Tete-Blanche had done his work well.

As they left, Batoche struck Finlay in the mouth. "Dat ees for Joe Flambeau!"

Blood burst from Finlay's split lips as he flung back: "Sorry I missed you, you yellow dog!"

Garry Finlay was alone with the horror of the coming night. He gazed through his fast closing eyes at the rose afterglow above him. "Last sunset! Last twilight, Garry!" he muttered. He filled his lungs with the spruce-sweet air and looked long at the black silhouettes of tree tops etched on the horizon. "Slow death from poisoning and shock! Slow—death!"

He was young and life was good. But it was over, now! He peered hungrily at the fading flush in the sky. "Last evening, Garry!"

He thought of the loyal Red and Blaise anxiously hunting the shore; of his family and of the grave on the Waswanipi. "Two of us, now, Bob!" he groaned. "He's got your ring! I saw it! Two instead of one, Bob, and I promised to get Tete-Blanche for you!"

Again and again he wrenched at the thongs on his wrists until his lacerated skin and the throb of his head stopped him. "Sergeant Garrett Finlay, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, lost on duty! Lost neglecting his duty! I begged for the detail and I got it. And this is what I've done with it—walked into a trap with my eyes open! Forgot duty and a clean record for a lying cheat of a girl! Red, Blaise!" he pleaded. "Forgive me for what I've done to you!"

men start out on the Nottaway, and visit Isadore in his magnificent home where they meet Lise, his pretty stepdaughter. In response to her desperate plea for aid, Finlay meets her secretly. After she left, gunmen attack him.

Under the lash of his remorse Finlay grew numb to the stings that were fast poisoning his blood. Then a sound back in the bush silenced him. Shortly he called: "Come and finish it, you bush rats!"

They had returned. If he could only taunt them to cutting it all short with a bullet. "Isadore's handsome, white-haired boy comes back!" he jeered. "And the cross-eyed M'sieu! Batoche who was bitten in the face by a rabbit!"

But his answer from the scrub was a mad yelp and the snapping of brush as a dog burst from the bushes, stopped, gazed in doubt at the huddled figure, approached and sniffed at the man who spoke to him, then in a delirium of whines and caresses threw himself on the master he loved.

"Flame! God bless your old bones! You followed their trail from the shore! Boy, I'm glad to see your whiskered map again!"

Frantic with joy the dog nuzzled Garry's tortured face and neck. Hope flowed through Finlay as water through a burst dam. With Flame there was a chance. Flame would never leave him. If he could only get the airedale to chew through the thongs that bound his wrists!

"Where's Red, Flame? Red and Blaise? They turned you loose to hunt for me but where—"

A distant shot stopped him. He listened while the dog's soothing tongue licked the blood on his face and head. "That's Red, signalling, or else there's a fight on." Like a madman Finlay battled with his thongs. They gave slightly and the blood began to ease into his numb hands. Then the long hours that Sergeant Finlay had spent on the education of an airedale puppy began to bear fruit. Fearing that, some day, he might be stolen and tied up, Finlay had taught the dog to chew through any rope, leather leash or raw-hide that held him prisoner.

After much coaxing Garry managed to focus the dog's attention on his bound wrists. Shortly Flame was licking the thongs as well as Finlay's hands.

"Eat it up! It's good—good chow for dogs! Chew it! It tastes good, Flame!" the man endlessly coaxed while his dog licked the thongs and the swollen forearms. Then Flame hooked a long fang under a loop and tugged at it. "That's the dog! Eat it up, Flame!" urged the man battling desperately against time.

Gradually the airedale seemed to comprehend. It was a game they were playing and he liked the taste of the fresh hide.

At last the dog lay down behind the bound man and with his great grinders jammed against Finlay's wrists began to chew at the knots. "That's the dog! Chew it up!"

Spurred by his master's approval and relishing the taste of the hide as he would a bone the airedale chewed through two key knots. A last heave and Finlay's numbed hands were free.

In his joy, he shook like grass in the wind. Again life beckoned as a camp-fire to a man lost at night in the bush. He laughed, now, at the black cloud of his tormentors which once meant a slow death. He laughed at Tete-Blanche, at Isadore. He'd come back from the grave.

"We've licked 'em, Flame!" he panted. "Bless your old hide, you've done it, boy!" Hugging the dog's wriggling body, Finlay crushed his face against the scarred skull. "I love every hair of your old carcass," he crooned. "I'll have my feet clear in a minute but you'll have to lead me to the shore. I'm stone blind."

When his numbed legs could carry him, Flame led him by a thong over the back track to the shore. Headlong into the cool water plunged man and dog, maddened by the lance-like thrusts which had stippled their bodies with welts.

"Oh, this is good, Flame!" Laving his burning arms and face, Finlay wallowed with grunts of relief in the comforting water. "I'm puffed up like a poisoned pig, Flamey, old socks! But we've whip-sawed this Tete-Blanche, you and I. We'll meet again some day and when we do there'll be lead in the air." He laughed bitterly.

A distant shot cut him short. "Hear that? Must be Red and Blaise hunting for us! Answer 'em, Flame! I've lost my gun. It's Red! Tell 'em we're here!"

The airedale's brittle bark floated through the murk settling on the lake.

Then Red hailed. Finlay answered and shortly the Peterboro slid up to the man lying in the shallow water of the shore.

"What's happened to you, Garry?" cried the alarmed Red, leaping from the canoe and bending over the man soaking in the water. "What are you lying there for, Garry? You hurt?"

"Hello, Red! You there, Blaise? I'm all right, but I've been eaten alive by bugs. I'm blind as a dead fish and I've got a lump on my head like an egg. I hate to leave this water even to shake hands with you."

OVERCOMING THE ADVERSARY

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 12:7-12; 15:2-4. GOLDEN TEXT—And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death.—Revelation 12:11.

War! What a familiar word! Men are saying we should put an end to war. We wish it were possible, but as long as sin rules in the hearts of men, there will be wars; in fact, our lesson tells us of a greater war which is to take place in the heavens. The devil is busy not only on earth, but in the heavenly places, and wherever he is there is war. Only when Christ, the Prince of Peace, comes to reign will peace come to all the earth.

Our lesson presents three scenes: Conflict in heaven, rejoicing over victory there, and a victory on earth which brought joy in heaven.

I. War in Heaven (12:7-9). A clear, succinct, and helpful word on these verses is quoted from Dr. John R. Bradbury:

"The dispensational interpretation of this passage is that during the period of tribulation, which follows the rapture of the saints, as described in I Thessalonians 4:15-18; I Corinthians 15:51, 52, and other passages, there will be a war in heaven between Michael and his angels and the devil and his. Satan is not in hell now. It is wrong to teach that he is there. He is the prince of the power of the air. He rules the darkness of this world. He inspires wickedness in his domain and on earth. Against these conditions the Christian is solemnly warned to prepare (Eph. 6:10-18). When we say that Satan is in heaven, we do not mean the heaven of the immediate presence of God. The Bible speaks of different heavens and there is even a 'heaven of heavens' (I Kings 8:27).

"From whence come all the cross-currents of wickedness now sweeping over the world—many of them contrary to the wishes of the vast majority of the people? That there is a malevolent genius directing sinister operations to hinder and baffle God and to destroy mankind is easy to understand. Many people ask, 'Why does not God destroy him?' The answer to that is in this lesson. His hour is coming. He will be expelled from his domain by Michael and his angels. Then, because the people of this world have co-operated with Satan so willingly, he will be allowed to take refuge in the earth. He will come down (v. 12) in great wrath, 'because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.'"

II. Rejoicing in Heaven (12:10-12).

If we accept what seems to be the correct view; namely, that the woman of Revelation 12:1-5 is Israel, the nation in which the child (v. 5), who is Christ, was born, then it would appear that those who here rejoice in the victory over the dragon (Satan) would be the Jewish believers who will have come through great tribulation. At the same time it is quite appropriate to apply the truth of the passage to us who now find ourselves in conflict with Satanic powers.

The accuser does not hesitate to appear even in the presence of God to bring charges against us (see Job 1:6-12). But we need not fear him, for he is already judged (I John 16:11) and will (as we see in our lesson) one day be cast down to earth, and (as other Scripture reveals) will ultimately be cast into the lake of fire (Rev. 20:10).

But he is here now, a supernatural (but not divine) being, plaguing us, tempting us, accusing us. What shall we do about it? As to his accusation, we know we have a just and loving God and also have an Advocate to plead our causes before Him (I John 2:2). For his present attacks, our lesson gives the secret of spiritual victory in verse 11.

III. Victory on Earth (Rev. 15:2-4).

The scene of victorious rejoicing which we see here is evidently in heaven, but it is because of victory on earth. Here are those that have come through the horrible conditions described in Revelation 13, and have been victorious over the beast, in spite of his great powers.

They sing; that is the token of real victory, of a heart victory. Whatever loss they may have suffered, and whatever trials they may have gone through, they have "gotten the victory" (v. 2). They sing the song of Moses and the Lamb (cf. Exod. 15:1-21 and Rev. 5:9-14).

It is right that the redeemed of the Lord should sing, glorifying the name of God (v. 4) and magnifying His great and marvelous works (v. 3). Let us remind ourselves again that if we are Christians, we are on the victorious side. The glimpse into the heavens which we find in our lesson should give us the right perspective with which to view the troublesome experiences of life. God has a plan, and He will bring it to complete and victorious fruition in His own time and His own way.

Doctor Solves Mystery Of Missing Sweet Peas

An absent-minded woman had insisted upon being operated on for appendicitis.

Some time after her recovery she asked her doctor if he would mind telling her what he had found in her appendix.

"Well," said the doctor, "I may as well admit that yours was the most extraordinary case I have ever handled. I never found anything like it in an appendix before. You will hardly believe it, but I found several small hard seeds."

"Oh," said the woman, "that accounts for our having no sweet peas this year. I must have sown the pills."

The best way to find out what to send soldiers in camp is to ask the soldiers themselves. Surveys among the men with the colors show cigarettes and smoking tobacco head the list. Actual sales records from service stores in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard show the largest-selling cigarette is Camel. Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is well-known as the "National Joy Smoke." A carton of Camels or a pound tin of Prince Albert is always welcome, doubly welcome around the end of the month. be the Presidents of neighboring Woman's Clubs.

Mary Meyer Bacon will be the guest speaker. Her subject will be "Thoughts Pertinent and Impertinent". Here are a few comments regarding her talk:

Mrs. Bacon so delighted, interested and amused her audience at the North End Women's Club that they called her back for as much additional time as she could give them. The most human, close to the heart talk of the year and without exception the outstanding personality. Hamilton Park Women's Club. "We loved your talk, so different from the things we usually hear. So much sparkle on top and depth all the way through." Woman's Dept. Club of Wheaton.

A reception and tea will follow the program. The regular business meeting will begin promptly at 1:30 p.m. Have you marked the day in your date book. Not yet—Well do so at once lest you forget.

School Library Has Fine Circulation.

Many children have taken advantage of the library since it opened a week ago. The very first day 75 books were in circulation. Many new books have been placed in the library much to the delight of the children who exhibit a great enthusiasm in its fine atmosphere. In addition to the 173 new story books are two sets of Britannica Junior encyclopedia, one set of My Wonder Book and one set of My Bookhouse.

The children now enjoy a very fine opportunity to read and use this reference material for their enjoyment and learning.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Tinley Park Fire Department and my kind neighbors:

Words are futile in expressing to you the deep appreciation I feel for the effort you gave to save my home from burning to the ground August 31. I would it were possible for me to show each one of you kind men how deeply I do appreciate your kindness at this tragic time, but that being impossible, I take this means to publicly thank you one and all.

MRS. EMMA COMBS

The next meeting of the Community Firemen's Association will be held at Oak Lawn, Monday, September 22 at 8 p.m.

The Bremen Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. Margaret Wortman, 17904 Sayre Ave., Tuesday, September 23 at 2 p.m. The minor project "Party Sandwiches" will be given by Mrs. Wortman, and our home advisor, Mrs. Mary L. Wright, will meet with us for the major project "Color in the home."

"OL MAN RIVER"

By Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd

KERN has proved that a classical music training is no handicap to the writing of successful popular music. By 35 he had composed twenty-five musical comedies.

While still a boy Kern traveled to Germany to study, and then proceeded to England where he became interested in the theatre.

His life's ambition was to meet Charles Frohman, and finally one day he succeeded—and began work at fifteen dollars a week.

He returned with the music of twenty plays and the friendship of P. G. Wodehouse, at that time also starting his career.

Kern had read Edna Ferber's novel "Show Boat," and saw it in his mind's eye as a musical show, but Miss Ferber laughed. Kern persisted, bought the stage rights and persuaded Ziegfeld to produce it.

Kern heard Paul Robeson sing and got the idea for "Ol Man River" from the impression the great negro singer made on him. He put the song in the new show.

But it was Jules Bledsoe who was cast in "Show Boat" and first sang the song. Kern has long been a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

His melodic show boat has brought down the river of time such great songs as "They Didn't Believe Me," "Sally," "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," "Music In the Air," and many others.

Farm Program Committeemen To Be Elected

Elections of county and community AAA farm program committeemen for the 1942 program year will be held in Cook County September 22 and 23, it is announced by the county agricultural conservation committee.

The elections, which symbolize the democratic organization of the nation's farm program will be held at polling places to be announced later. Voting is expected to take place either in the afternoon or evening. Farmers will be asked to choose three community AAA committeemen and two alternate community committeemen on Monday, September 22. They will also elect a delegate to the county AAA convention at which the county committee and two alternate county committeemen are elected. This county convention will take place on Tuesday morning, September 23.

Any farmer who has participated in the AAA farm program this year is eligible to vote in the election.

Carl Bormet of Orland township, present county chairman, urged farmers to turn out for the elections. He said that attendance in many election meetings in the past has been small, which means less democratic choice of committeemen. Farmers can help maintain democracy with this exercise of discussion and the ballot at election meetings, he declared.

Community committeemen elected by the farmers serve as AAA leaders in their township. They are kept informed through the AAA farm program of trends in agriculture and can guide farmers to make their greatest contribution to national defense. Other jobs of the community committeemen are to secure participation in the AAA program and check on program performance.

New Laws of Interest to Suburbs

1. The power to license and regulate filling stations, oil plants and the storage of flammable liquids was restored to cities and villages by House Bill 907. Under the 1919 Volatile Oil Act no city had the power to enact such a regulation unless it had an ordinance "in full force and effect" on July 1, 1919. Now the Department of Public Safety has control over the storage of gasoline, etc., except "in cities or villages where regulatory ordinances are now or may hereafter be adopted."

2. Money appropriated for one purpose may be transferred to another within the same department after the first half of the fiscal year, by a two-thirds vote, under House Bill 690.

3. Fines for violation of the state traffic or Motor Vehicle laws no longer go to the municipality in which the violation occurred, under Senate Bills 515 and 516. It is now even more important to have in force a complete traffic ordinance so that offenders can be fined for violating the ordinance, in which case the fine will go to the municipality.

AT THE ROXY

A thrill and laugh a minute are in store for the theatre going public when they see, "The Bride Came C.O.D." starring the superb performances of James Cagney, Bette Davis, and Stuart Erwin, which will be featured at the Roxy Theatre, at Lockport, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

The story of the crazy antics of a newspaper columnist is "Meet John Doe," with Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper, which will be featured at the Roxy Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

GLASNER BROTHERS

Authorized HUDSON Sales and Service

F. M. GLASNER

410 W. Burlington Ave., LaGrange

The 1942 HUDSON Auto on display in their show rooms carries with it all of the positive assurance of sound, enduring virtue which has always been associated with the very name of HUDSON.

Needless to say, there is all of the old reliability, responsibility and regularity of performance—more pronounced than ever because in the Hudson Plant the passage of time is a continuous process of improvement.

Hudson coach work has improved upon itself so that the new car comes to you not only with a greater charm of general design but a far more impressive and beautiful finish. These latter are the lesser satisfaction—the real delight will come in the revelation of greater riding ease and road ability and swifter acceleration. A delightful experience is in store for Hudson owners and non-owners.

The experienced and well known proprietors and assistants in this establishment are business men of high standing and prominent in the commercial life of the community. They are boosters for the community and in this edition it is eminently fitting and proper that we direct your attention to Glasner Brothers as one of the very important features of the efficiency of this section.

YOU CAN SEND YOUR SHOES HERE PARCEL POST—SERVICE OF THE BETTER KIND

Keeping step with the times is the modern repair shop that offers a worthwhile service in the full meaning of the word to its many patrons. Such an establishment is the West End Shoe Rebuilders of LaGrange.

People living in the rural and suburban sections are given a parcel post service. If it is not convenient for you to take your shoes direct to them you can use parcel post or leave them when you are in town shopping and they will be returned to you parcel post, or you can use this service both ways.

The shop is equipped with the latest machinery, enabling them to give the best in shoe repair service and excellent work at reasonable prices.

Regardless of what work is needed to be done, or whether the shoes are for men, women or children, this aggressive establishment will perfectly execute the necessary repairs and return them to you in tip-top shape. To insure their patrons of only the best possible work, only skilled shoe craftsmen are employed.

The West End Shoe Rebuilders establishment takes great pride in its shop and constantly seeks new means of making their service the most helpful of any available in LaGrange.

COSSITT'S UPTOWN GRILL

Fred Cossitt

122 W. Burlington Ave., LaGrange

Air Conditioned. Good Food — Well Served At The Right Price

There is something about Cossitt's Uptown Grill that sets it apart from other eating places and that makes it highly satisfactory. The extreme care and thought that goes into everything, the cooking, serving and arrangements create a dining room to be visited regularly.

You'll like the surroundings, they are attractive and comfortable and extremely quiet. The food is good, it is temptingly delicious, prepared in the most careful manner in a spotless sanitary kitchen. The cooking is done in a modern, sanitary and scientific manner which gives added flavor to the food.

You'll find here a tempting variety of fresh vegetables prepared to retain all their natural flavor. Choice meats, rolls and muffins fresh from the oven and real home-made pies. You must learn for yourself what a pleasure it is to eat at this grill.

Here good food is combined with prices of consistent modesty. Proper food, well chosen and well cooked is an absolute essential to good health building. Here you will find everything deliciously appetizing.

You will find here all foods in season and many fruits and vegetables out of season. They cater to your taste and the other fellows. So that it makes no difference whether you are on a diet, or present a lumber jack's appetite, there is food that will suit your particular desire.

The Managers have been in the restaurant business for many years and are thoroughly conversant with its every phase.

In making this Business 1941 Review we are pleased to direct the attention of our readers to this metropolitan service.

This grill is under the direct supervision of Fred Cossitt and Anne Hayford.

COMPLETE SHOE SERVICE — SHARPEN LAWNMOWERS FOR Our South and Southwest Cook County Readers.
YOU CAN SEND YOUR SHOES HERE PARCEL POST—SERVICE OF THE BETTER KIND

Keeping step with the times is the modern repair shop that offers a worthwhile service in the full meaning of the word to its many patrons. Such an establishment is the West End Shoe Rebuilders of LaGrange.

People living in the rural and suburban sections are given a parcel post service. If it is not convenient for you to take your shoes direct to them you can use parcel post or leave them when you are in town shopping and they will be returned to you parcel post, or you can use this service both ways.

The shop is equipped with the latest machinery, enabling them to give the best in shoe repair service and excellent work at reasonable prices.

Regardless of what work is needed to be done, or whether the shoes are for men, women or children, this aggressive establishment will perfectly execute the necessary repairs and return them to you in tip-top shape. To insure their patrons of only the best possible work, only skilled shoe craftsmen are employed.

The West End Shoe Rebuilders establishment takes great pride in its shop and constantly seeks new means of making their service the most helpful of any available in LaGrange.

PALOS PARK

By DOROTHY ROBSON

Mrs. Margaret Walters and Mrs. MacLaughlin of Chicago visited at the Weir home one day last week.

ANNA BEHRENS BEAUTY SHOP

ANNA BEHRENS, PROP.

Phone: Summit 503

This shop conveniently located in Argo has established an enviable reputation and trade upon the merit of excellent service rendered here.

They have made a study of the permanent wave from a scientific standpoint and have supplemented this with much actual work, which makes this service both tried and modern. Permanent waving has advanced very rapidly in the last few years and this shop has kept right abreast of the times.

This beauty salon is fully equipped with complete permanent waving machines and has licensed operators to give you the best and most courteous service possible at a very modest price.

Here the operators will put a wave in your hair in the shortest time possible consistent with the quality of work which they do. All you have to do is phone Summit 503 for an appointment, go there at the appointed time and leave the rest to them.

The operators in this shop have made a scientific study of the hair and skin and use only the correct tonics and creams that stimulate and heal in their treatments.

In this review we are glad to compliment the Anna Behrens Beauty Shop on the greatest success they are making in this chosen profession and to refer their valuable service to the people of this community.

This is one of our most modern establishments to be found in this section having the latest efficient equipment for the carrying out of a complete service for the repairing of all radios regardless of the model or make.

They have a most complete line of supplies for your radio, so no matter what part you may require for your set it will pay you to get in touch with them and in all probability they can supply your needs immediately. They carry at all times a complete stock of tubes and supplies. Those desiring these parts can always secure them at this shop.

There is probably nothing more annoying than to turn on the radio and get poor reception, whether wishing to get the market reports, entertainments, or any other form of reception and it is all uncalculated for to be annoyed in this way when you have such institutions as this shop in your locality to keep your sets in the finest working condition possible.

In many instances, the trouble is just some minor defect that can be remedied in a very short time when taken to a reliable shop such as is this one, but if not, taken to an amateur, will in many cases develop more serious trouble and then you do not have the radio working perfectly. This shop is a leader and a home booster.

There will be found the very newest and most attractive designs of the decorators art, from the luxurious upholstered furniture to the wonderfully effective wicker for the living room or sun room. Furniture for every taste and every bank account. Dining room suites that are well made and beautifully designed in Oak, Walnut and Mahogany.

We compliment the Management of the LaGrange Furniture Mart upon the valuable position its home furnishings service occupies in the life of the community through the quality of merchandise offered to the public. We suggest to all the readers of this paper that whenever they need furniture of any description for the home, they pay a visit to this popular store where each piece of merchandise sold carries a guarantee for their service only ends with your satisfaction.

Beds which promise the deepest sleep are there to satisfy the more moderate purse. Everything that is desired for comfort and beauty in your home, whether large or small, can be found at this popular furniture store.

The Management is among the most acute merchants in the city or State, and they practice the Golden Rule in all business dealings. The rightness of this business policy was proven by the rapidity of growth of this establishment, for only honest, quality merchandise is sold at the fairest prices. Naturally, many friends have been made and these friends have been consistent boosters for this popular firm.

We refer our readers in this 1941 Business Review to this very worthy Furniture House.

TIMES SQUARE BOWLING & BILLIARDS

Mr. C. Frees, The Congenial Proprietor

Archer Avenue Near 63rd Street

Ample Parking Facilities

Telephone: Summit 460

Times Square Bowling and Billiards are popular parties—They are glad to make special arrangements for your party or group of clubs

The people of this section are very fortunate to have in their midst places of the popularity and character of the Times Square Billiard and Bowling Alleys.

As man climbs to the pinnacle of progress and conquers the various forces of the universe, it is no longer necessary to spend days and nights in drudgery. Electricity and the great inventions are relieving the people of working many hours a day and in our time it is recognized that the people should have the evenings, Saturdays and Sundays for rest and recreation.

When you're tired or "down at the heels" just drive here and find new thoughts, new laughs, enjoy the feeling of good fellowship at the Times Square Bowling and Billiards and gain a recreated feeling for the next day's tasks.

The Times Square have a modern establishment with ample modern alleys and is the most inviting place for an evening's entertainment in this section of the state. They have the best of equipment and the attendants give the very best of service in every way. The management is very careful to see that all are welcome here and are given every attention.

Bowling has become the one great game of the evening as it is a contest of skill as well as being a very healthful exercise and keeps down obesity.

They are ready to book your coterie for a game here at any time and you will find if you give a party of this kind that it will be a great success. Your guests will be pleased with your entertainment and vote your party a success.

At the Times Square Bowling Alleys in Argo you will always have plenty of fun and laughs galore and one of the best things about coming here is that the charges are moderate at all times. An evening spent here will never be regretted.

HOMER

A goodly number of Homer people attended the funeral services for Jesse Marshall at the Sonntag Funeral Home Saturday afternoon.

Automatic Detachable Gas House-Heater

Fits easily into door of warm air furnace or hot water boiler

... does not interfere with regular Winter furnace operation.

Hundreds now in use!

Now — enjoy automatic heat when it counts the most and costs the least! Counts the most — because Fall days with changeable weather take lots of furnace fussing if you don't have automatic heat. Even if you do watch the weather closely and get out the shovel every time the mercury drops, chances are your house is too cold in the morning and too hot in the afternoon. That's the beauty of this automatic gas house-heater — it takes the work off your hands, and does a perfect job.

And don't forget about costs! Fall and Spring are the seasons when automatic heat costs the least! It takes a lot of extra fuel to build a new furnace fire every few days. The automatic gas house-heater saves money, because it doesn't waste fuel. And besides that ... you get a special low house heating gas rate!

Get the complete facts on this fine new work-saver now — before those costly hard-to-heat Autumn days are here. Write, phone or come in to your Public Service office.

Attach it in 30 seconds. Weighs less than 14 pounds. No pipes or bolts to bother with — you don't even need a wrench.

Let it do all the work. Set the thermostat at the house temperature you like best — then forget it.

MOKENA GARDEN CLUB MEMBERS MAKE INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE TOUR

Quite a number of the members of the Mokena Garden Club spent a very enjoyable day this past Tuesday visiting the pottery works at Dundee and Italian Balm plant at Elgin.

Leaving the Mokena depot at 9 o'clock they motored to Dundee, Ill., where at the Hager Pottery Co. they watched the entire process of the making of vases, dishes and ornamental pieces.

From the pottery works they motored to Elgin where they visited the Campana Co. plant, makers of Italian Balm; and from there they stopped at Mooseheart and were escorted through the various buildings and viewed the beautiful gardens.

On account of arriving a bit late in the afternoon at Mooseheart the ladies were not able to make a complete tour of the institution, so they plan to pay Mooseheart another visit in the near future.

Performance at All Times.

The DeSoto from the first has been an outstanding car. Now they have brought out new cars designed and executed to inspire admiration to such a point that they will at once replace anything that has gone before and bring into existence an entirely new motoring vogue.

The up-to-date New DeSoto is the most artistic and distinctive, most radical, striking and stylish, and most luxurious cars they have ever built at or near their prices. They are the largest, fastest and most comfortable not to mention the smoothest and quietest at every speed. You must see these striking new standards of beauty and performance at their show rooms.

The New 1942 Plymouth is the largest, roomiest and most powerful car in the entire low price motor car field—having both floating power and real economy.

We are confident that all who are even remotely interested in progress of motor car artistry will feel amply repaid by their immediate inspection of these completely new Plymouth cars.

In conclusion, in this 1941 Business Survey of Brookfield, LaGrange, Western Springs and surrounding territory, we desire to compliment this highly efficient Dealer upon his good fortune in being the representative for so worthy a line of motor cars.

STANDS the most powerful nation on the face of the world . . . powerful because of its 130,000,000 happy, unified, liberty-loving citizens . . . and powerful because of its infinite capacity to produce materials to construct a free, great country.

America boasts not of her capacity to produce goods for destruction, but stands serene and confident in this hour of world chaos in the knowledge that should the proponents of barbarism force her to do so, mankind will be stunned at the incredible torrent of death-dealing instruments a peace-loving, tolerant, but aroused people can fashion to crush the foes of tolerance and liberty.

These sentiments are presented for your attention by God grant that our mountains will be undecaying monuments to our priceless heritage . . . that our boundless prairies will continue to produce not only our food, but the nourishment of those soil-rooted virtues which are threatened with banishment by the frenzied madmen of another continent. God grant that our great expanse of oceans will by their very greatness protect us from the exponents of doctrines that would rob us of our priceless rights of freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom of assembly and freedom for an enlightened press. We are proud to be part of the first line of defense of American liberties . . . to always stand militantly at the side of every true American against the inroads of doctrines seeking to destroy America's priceless heritage.

LET'S MAKE A DATE FOR LUNCHEON
(See Recipes Below)

FALL LUNCHEON

As the leaves begin to crackle and fall's favorite flower, the chrysanthemum, stirs in the sweet smelling earth, and fruit hangs heavy and ripe on the trees—do your thoughts turn to luncheons and bridge?

If they do, prepare to have one now, using as your theme the leaves, fruits or flowers that fall has to offer as a welcome change from summer luncheons you may have had. If you are having a pre-luncheon bridge, try carrying out the fall theme on the bridge tables with small vases of fall flowers, in candies, and decorations. Favors can be had using the autumn theme and prizes may be wrapped in the burnished fall shades or tied with ribbons of that color.

Whatever you do, have your tables and especially the centerpiece stunning enough to stimulate interest and conversation. It'll make luncheon and bridge afterwards a real success, and star you as a smart hostess.

Play up the oranges and yellow in food for luncheon, picking it up here and there in this dish and that with a touch of green to lighten interest. Do something unusual in the main dish by having a frozen or cooked fish fillet lightly creamed and well garnished. Simple to fix, a dream to behold, yet delicate to taste, here's your main dish:

*Creamed Fillet of Flounder With Mushrooms.

2 packages quick frozen fillet of flounder, cooked or 2½ cups cooked fish
2½ cups fish liquor or light cream
2½ cups sliced mushrooms
6 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Watercress

If using frozen flounder, cook in a saucepan, adding 1 cup boiling water and ½ teaspoon salt, and cook until tender. If using cooked fish, be sure it is well drained. Flake fish. Cook mushrooms in butter, until well browned, add flour. Add fish liquor and cream, gradually stirring constantly and cook until thick. Add fish and seasoning. Serve on hot buttered toast or in patty shells. Sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with watercress.

When serving the vegetables, pretty the platter by serving both the green beans, cut in long, lengthwise strips, and the carrots cut lengthwise, side by side. Or have a mound of carrots or beans in the center, and then have alternating mounds of green bean and carrot strips coming out toward the rim of the plate.

If you were to take a poll among your luncheon guests, you would probably be surprised how many

LYNN SAYS:

Sit up and take notice of fall's possibilities for table decoration. Cornucopias and centerpieces of fruits and vegetables interlaced with burnished leaves and brightly colored flowers certainly have a way with them and will do very nicely for your luncheon table.

Take a tip from the outdoors and make the most of the humble squash, apple, pear, or a spray of bittersweet. Let your fruit glisten and shine by rubbing with oil and then polishing to a high luster. For more permanent effects, have the fruit laquered. Arrange pears, apples and grapes on doilies of autumn leaves and set on a mirror for the centerpiece, or have the fruit arranged from the opening of a squash. Dusky red or bright chrysanthemums look effective if arranged in a small squash. Any of these will give your table a smart note and also a piece of grand conversation for luncheon guests.

Speaking of nice touches, put a leaf of deep rich red, brown, or yellow, or a bit of bittersweet to the side of a placecard. This will be just fine to carry out the autumn theme of the centerpiece.

women confess to an extraordinary interest in rolls, bread and muffins. Here's a bread which highlights a luncheon perfectly and whose orange flavor gives just the right touch of piquancy to the meal:

*Orange Honey Bread. (Makes 1 loaf)

3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
1½ tablespoons grated orange rind
2½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup chopped walnuts.

Cream the shortening until light, then add honey gradually, and continue beating until well blended. Stir in the egg and the grated orange rind. Sift the dry ingredients together several times, then add them alternately with the orange juice. Stir in the walnuts. Pour the batter into a well-greased loaf pan and let stand 20 minutes before putting into oven. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven for 1 hour or until well done when a toothpick comes out clean. If desired, ¼ cup of candied orange peel may be added to the batter to give additional flavor, or may be substituted for the nuts.

I shall pass lightly over the subject of salads. Ours today follow nearly the same pattern as recipes printed in old cookbooks. But I would like to give you a recipe for a dressing. Used on a salad of hard-cooked eggs, lettuce, chopped onions and sliced radishes it's tops.

Rub the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs together with 1 tablespoon of cold water until smooth. To this add 2 tablespoons of salad oil and 1 teaspoon each of salt, powdered sugar and prepared mustard, and blend well. Finally, add 2 tablespoons each of plain and tarragon vinegar.

And last, but not least, here's a recipe for ice cream. Serve this with sliced fresh peaches topped with whipped cream.

Uncooked Custard Ice Cream.

½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups top milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Pinch of salt
½ pint whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Dissolve the ½ cup of sugar and the salt in the cold milk. Beat the egg white until stiff, add 2 tablespoons sugar and then beat in the egg yolks, one at a time. Combine with the milk and fold in the whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into freezing trays and stir every 15 or 20 minutes until firm. This may also be made in a crank freezer, but the amount should be doubled for the ordinary size of freezer.

If you desire to vary this recipe, here are suggestions:
Maple Ice Cream—Add maple flavoring to taste in place of the vanilla; about 6 drops will be needed.
Butterscotch—Substitute brown sugar for the ½ cup of white sugar.

Chocolate—Melt two squares cake chocolate and add to custard mixture. Four additional tablespoons sugar must be added as well.
Peppermint—Peppermint flavoring, oil of peppermint and enough pink coloring to give the desired color are added.

Odd Tribe Uses Masks to Scare Spirit of Death

Tucanos of Brazil, Least Known People, Have Queer Customs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Ceremonial dance costumes of one of the earth's least known peoples—the Tucano Indians of the Rio Uaupes on the Brazil-Ecuador border—have just been added to the collection of the Smithsonian institution.

They were received from Lt. Col. Bina Machado, air attaché of the Brazilian embassy, who spent 18 months in this little-explored hinterland a few years ago and gained an intimate knowledge of the native peoples.

Scare the Demons.

This particular tribe has been described by travelers in the past but remains almost unstudied anthropologically. The costumes, used in dances to ward off evil spirits who are supposed to cause sickness and death, are of beaten bark cloth made from the bark of the Brazil-nut tree. Each of them includes a mask intended to frighten the demons.

Among the articles collected by Colonel Machado, but not included in the material acquired by the Smithsonian, were rubber shoes used by the Indians in these dances. These may represent the most primitive use of rubber for footwear.

The medicine man, according to the account given by Colonel Machado to Smithsonian anthropologists, must dance well when he dons his weird costume for if an important patient dies in spite of his incantations he is held responsible for it and is likely to be beaten in punishment.

Are Real Artists.

Other articles of South American ethnology just acquired for the Smithsonian collections include remarkably lifelike portraits painted on goatskin by the Quechua Indians of Imbabura province, Ecuador. These Indians have acquired remarkable proficiency in the white man's style of painting.

They will be grouped with a similar collection of portraits by native artists obtained many years ago from various tribes of Peruvian Indians—the Cashivos, Piro, Lorensos, Orejones, and Campas—by Lt. W. E. Stafford, who explored the country for the United States department of agriculture.

The individual portraits show remarkable variations in physical features and faithfully record details of personal adornment, costume, and weapon types.

British Decoy Planes Of Rubber Fool Nazis

AKRON, OHIO.—An Akron manufacturer disclosed that Great Britain is using decoy planes of rubber, inflated like balloons, to lure enemy raiders into wasting bombs.

Cliff Slusser, vice president in charge of production, said the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company has built life-size planes, with exteriors duplicating those of fighting ships, out of rubber. From overhead, and even close on the ground, the deception is so complete it baffles experienced airmen.

"The rubber planes already built by Goodyear include English Spitfires—now in use 'somewhere in Britain'—and other types which have been sent overseas," Mr. Slusser said.

Here's Real 'Bottleneck'

Acute Shortage of Corks

WASHINGTON.—The commerce department called attention to a real bottleneck of potential concern to millions of parched patriots.

The dry facts are, the department said in a report on the alcoholic beverage situation, that "rationing of limited supplies of cork has introduced a new factor in beverage distribution," particularly since "no suitable substitute for cork for bottle caps and stoppers is at present in production."

The department added, however, that the possible use of a composition of rubber (also a strategic imported material, but relatively more abundant than cork) or of developing a cork source in Brazil was under consideration.

Carrier Pigeons Relay

Story of Army Induction

TRENTON, N. J.—Francis P. Duff relayed home by carrier pigeon the step-by-step story of his induction into army service.

He brought with him from his hillside home, 50 miles away, six pigeons. The first flew homeward with a message reporting his arrival. Then, as Duff passed through the various stages of induction, the rest fluttered away, the last pigeon taking to the air as Duff boarded a train for Fort Dix.

Wife Beater—the Rat—

Turns Out to Be Mouse

ANNISTON, ALA.—A woman's screams aroused the neighborhood and someone called police to "stop a man beating his wife, or something terrible."

A police car dashed up and officers ran into the house to find:

A wife standing on a chair and a husband pursuing a mouse.

"I am sorry you are leaving us, Jane," said Mrs. Browne, "but, of course, if you are going to better yourself, I—"
"Oh, no, ma'am," replied the maid, "I'm going to be married."

Could It Be That?

Prospective Maid — Thirteen children! I'm afraid the place won't suit me.
Mistress—Don't be so superstitious.

When a man marries, says a writer, he comes to the end of his troubles. He didn't say which end.

The Will and the Way

"John," said the young mother, "I've decided on a name for baby. We will call her Imogen."

John was lost in thought for a few minutes. He did not like the name, but if he opposed it his wife would have her own way.

"That's nice," he said presently. "My first sweetheart was named Imogen, and she'll take it as a compliment."

"We will call her Mary, after my mother," was the stern reply.

Plants, Flowers Grow Rapidly

A DELIGHTFUL mystery! Heliotrope with sweet clusters of tiny flowers, graceful palms and ivy-striped pandanus—all growing merrily in a small-necked jug. Admiring friends ask "How on earth did they get there?"

Bottle terrariums are almost as simple to make as the more usual

Serve the Purpose

Why Invent Words?

Some writers go to the trouble of inventing words, which few outside their own circle can understand. The English language is extremely rich in words, and not impoverished. In the unabridged edition of the English dictionary there are some 500,000 words, far more than any man can hope to use. Shakespeare had a vocabulary of only 15,000 words, compared with 60,000 used by the educated adult today. Milton used 17,000 different words, and the Bible contains only 7,200 different words.

RALEIGH CIGARETTES

PRIVATE PURKEY ON 'MANOOVERS'

Dear Ma—
Well I am just back from another maneuver with my outfit and I don't know whether we won or lost on account of there was a dispute between the umpires. One ruled that we were exterminated and the other came up with a decision that we was not even touched. It is all on account of the flag system witch I gess you never heard of so I will explain it to you ma.

Of coarse we do not shoot each other in these here war games but at the same time nobody can tell how the fight came out if it is all forgot as just a cross country outing. So a lot of flags is used to denote where we are and what happened. All we jeeps do is obey orders and we don't even know what the main idea is. But the observers and umpires who have the whole thing worked out on maps get a idea what wood of happened if it had been a actual battle. Here is where the flags come in.

An umpire waving a blue flag indicates that you are smack in the middle of an area witch is under artillery bombardment and that it is a very unhealthy spot to stay in. If he has a yellow flag it is serposed to show that you are under machine gun fire and that if you go any further into it you wood be shot full of holes in a real war. Another colored flag means that we are advancing thru a heavy smoke screen and so on. I heard that in this last battle somebody got all mixed up on the flags and it still is a question witch got mixed up most the officers or the referees. Anyhow one official said the flags meant my division had walked right through a area witch the enemy was giving the works and that we was mostly all dead or wounded. He said that in a real fight all of us wood have been legible to be buried as the Unknown Soldier. Another referee said nothing of the kind. He said he was a better judge of flags than the other fellow and that from what he saw we had been safe all the time except from more bunions.

Of coarse for all I know one of 'em is color blind but I do not care as long as the generals do not order the game played over again.

Believe me I am glad the summer is almost over as the weather seems twice as hot in a army as it does anywhere else and it seems to me I have spent the last four weeks in a dust cloud. I never knew there was so much dust in America. It wood almost be a great break for me if I got lent to Iceland, except that I do not think I would like the long days up there.

Sergeant Mooney says the sun does not set at all in the summer in Iceland and that it is day time 24 hours. A 12-hour day is plenty for me, especially in the army. In a place where the sun does not go down I wood be afraid the bugler wood get all mixed up and start blowing me out of bed at midnight.

Well anyhow I am getting so used to tough brakes that nothing bothers me much no more, except when I do not get regular letters from you and Lillian and Doris and all the girls witch reminds me do you know where Lucretia Willeets has moved? All my letters to her come back.
Love, Oscar.

Two simple strokes
Loosen the yokes
Fashioned by tyranny,
Marked in the night
Yield, in the light,
Omens for all to see.

On wall and on door
More and yet more
Symbols of victory,
Pointed and narrow,
Sharp as an arrow,
This is the letter V.
—Richard Armour.

Elmer Twitchell says a lot of people won't really get aroused to the realities of the war crisis until they see the prospect of a return of prohibition and homemade gin.

A PAIR OF CURS
I'd like to see him go to prison,
Also pay a fine.
We both raise dogs and he let his'n
Whip that pup of mine.
—Merrill Chilcote.

What was once oil for the lamps of China has become oil for the scamps of Japan.

Veils are coming back, we're told.
Well, maybe it's an easier way to glamour than just using less make-up.
